FRIDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 17.

Her Head in a Bulldog's Mouth.

Joseph Goodfellow, of Roselle, N. J., purchased a bulldog about six months ago. It was a fighter, and was kept for that purpose, but while being extremely ugly toward other dogs, it was never known to be in the least vicious toward any member of Mr. Goodfellow's family until Monday. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon it slipped its collar in some way and walked into the house, where May, the 3-year-old daughter of its owner, was playing in the dining room. The little girl picked it up and held it, and it seemed to be the best of humor, but when she got up from the floor, where she was sitting, and started to walk across the room the dog leaped upon her, and taking her head in its mouth raised her from the floor and began to shake her.

Miss Esther Smith, an elderly relative of the family, was in the room, but she was so much overcome with fright that she was powerless to interfere. The shaking lasted but a few seconds. The dog's jaws relaxed, and May fell to the floor. She immediately crawled under a chair. The dog sprang at her again, and, knocking over the chair, seized her by her clothing and began to drag her about the room, shaking her all the time. Just at this point Mrs. Goodfellow, attracted by the screams, came running into the room. It happened that she had seen her husband manage the dog when it had fought with other dogs, and she knew how to take hold of it. She got by the throat and choked it until it held upon the child's dress loosened. Then she dragged it from the room. Mr. Goodfellow, who was at work in the next house, also heard the cries and ran in just as the dog was thrown out. He immediately sucked the wounds of his daughter and sent for a doctor, who arrived shortly and applied ointments and bandages. The wounds were all upon the head and face of the child, the worst being made by the tusks of the dog where he seized her the first time. There is an ugly gash over the right eye, another in the scalp, and another behind the left ear, besides a number of smaller scratches on her cheeks and chin. Though the wounds are not considered dangerous the little girl will probably carry the marks of her encounter for the rest of her life. The dog will be kept for a few days to see if it develops any symptoms of madness, but whether he does or not he is to be killed.

ECZEMA FROM CHILDHOOD

When an infant my body broke out all over with an eruption or rash, which became more aggravated as I grew older. Every noted physician in our section was tried or consulted. When I came of age I visited Hot Springs, Ark., and was treated by the best medical men, but was not benefited. When all things had failed I determined to try S. S. S., and in four months was entirely cured. The terrible Eczema was all gone, not a sign left; my general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease.
